Welcome

President's Message

I'm So Glad You Found Your Way to San José!

Welcome to our 2012 Conference! Janice Gilmore-See, our Conference Chair and all of the 2012 Conference Committee members have done an incredible job planning this event.

As CSLA President-Elect for 2011-2012, I had the privilege of choosing the conference theme, School Libraries Link Lifelong Learners. I selected this theme in recognition of what I see as the true power, indeed, the magic, of school libraries. Our school library programs not only link students with the education, tools, guidance, and motivation to become lifelong learners; they also serve as a central learning link for all the staff at our schools to enhance their lifelong learning, with their library staff as their leaders in this endeavor. And, while lifelong learning is crucial for every member of our society, I know of no group that places a higher priority on ongoing learning than school library people. We thrive on the new knowledge we gain through our own reading and learning each and every day. But, that isn't enough for us. We have a need to connect with each other to learn more, so we also all build personal learning network links that enable us to learn through virtual contacts with colleagues across the state, the country, and even the globe, each day. And there have never been better or more exciting opportunities than there are today to learn virtually. Still, there is nothing quite like real, live contact. So, when we get the chance - as we do at each annual conference - to meet in person and link with others in our school library field, true magic happens. We meet people in the flesh we once knew only virtually, we all learn from friends old and new, we get inspired with wonderful ideas, we have fun, and we go away energized with enough new learning to carry us through an entire year and well beyond.

Every day of the conference offers unique activities and magic, from tried and true long-time conference favorites, to brand new events this year. Among the tried and true events you won't want to miss are a stellar lineup of pre-conference workshops and concurrent sessions, our CYRM Authors/Illustrators Banquet, and a wonderful assortment of vendor exhibits. Exciting new events this year include our Friday night Team Trivia Competition, Vendor Learning Sessions on Saturday, WOGI-es (Welcoming One Good Idea - crowd-source) on Sunday, and what promises to be a life-changing Leadership Day experience with Steve Farber on Monday.

This conference also marks my personal transition from President-Elect, with my key focus on this year's conference, to your 2012-2013 President. As President, it is my goal to serve each and every one of you, and I want your input on how best to accomplish that. If we haven't met before, please introduce yourself at the conference. If we have, let's please reconnect so I can hear your ideas and enjoy an opportunity to visit.

I am confident that we will all take away priceless, magical experiences at this conference that will energize and improve our practice as school library people and help us to better link our students, staff, and ourselves to lifelong learning. I am equally confident that we will all have a wonderful time, and leave with treasured memories of time spent with friends old and new.

Thanks so much for joining your CSLA colleagues here!

Jane Lofton

CSLA President, 2012-2013

Welcome

Conference Chair's Message

Dear School Library Colleagues and Friends,

We are thrilled to welcome you to the city of San José for our annual conference.

In the short time we are together we have crafted a packed schedule of workshops, concurrent sessions, exhibits, and keynote speakers, as well as some fun extracurricular activities. We seek to enrich your practice and celebrate how School Libraries Link Lifelong Learners.

How great will it be to hear from Tasha Bergson-Michelson, a Google Search Educator and our Opening Keynote Speaker, that school librarians are more important than ever in helping to ignite students' curiosity, creativity, and critical thinking?

We hope that, in addition to the outstanding conference program that has been assembled through the hard work of the conference committee members, you will be able to participate in the social activities that allow us to connect with old friends and make new ones. The Opening Reception at the Exhibit Hall, Team Trivia Competition, Presidents' Reception at Gordon Biersch, and our Birds of a Feather Meetings are meant to do just that.

Please attend our annual Membership Meeting where your State Board Officers will report on the health of the association and share the vision for the future. This is also your opportunity to share your thoughts and concerns with us. We are actively inviting our members to become more involved, and we'd like you to let us know the best way to provide you opportunities to contribute to our organization.

Finally, our culminating event, the Extreme Leadership Summit, will explore the weighty issues facing our profession, especially in light of our critical role in education. Steve Farber will help us LEAP into leadership roles leveraging our expertise and strengths. We have invited and gotten the support of many partners from the technology, communications, and entertainment industries, as well as governmental agencies. This is indeed a great opportunity for collaboration, critical inquiry, and reflective dialog at an exciting juncture for school library practitioners.

We hope you enjoy the conference and leave San José ready to change the world for the better.

Cheers,

Janice Gilmore-See

Conference Highlights

Google Workshop, Google Keynote

Don't miss a unique opportunity on Friday morning to tour Google's Googleplex headquarters and attend a special workshop on Google Search led by Tasha Bergson-Michelson, Google Search Educator. And do continue your day with great afternoon workshops at the Santa Clara County Office of Education. Should you miss the Friday morning event, you will be able to hear Tasha Bergson-Michelson's keynote for all conference attendees on Saturday morning exploring "Curiosity, creativity, and critical thinking: Why school libraries matter more than ever."

MTV - Meet the Vendors Scavenger Hunt

As you tour the Exhibit Hall on Friday evening and all day Saturday, play our Meet the Vendors Scavenger Hunt. Get answers and complete a scavenger hunt card as you visit exhibitors and learn about their products for a chance to win prizes. You can complete up to four different cards for four chances to win. And, don't miss the special exhibitor learning sessions scheduled adjacent to the Exhibit Hall.

WOGIcs "Welcoming One Good Idea – crowd-source"

Along with a stellar selection of concurrent sessions, a highlight on Sunday will be our WOGIcs "Welcoming One Good Idea – crowd-source" general session at which we will crowd-source school library program gems from all our attendees. Go away with a barrel full of ideas to take back to your site, and please do share one of your own great ideas with the group.

Legislative Breakfast

Monday's Legislative Breakfast will feature an address by the California Department of Education's top staff. We will hear from Craig Cheslog, Chief Advisor to Tom Torlakson, Superintendent of Public Instruction about the top recommendations of the recent CDE-sponsored Technology Task Force and learn about Torlakson's vision for public education in California.

Leadership Day

Steve Farber, best-selling author of The Radical Leap Re-Energized and other business books, inspires audiences with his transformative ideas on how to be an effective leader. CSLA is honored to have him as our keynote speaker and guest leader on Monday. Over 20 governmental and industry organizations have committed to participating as Steve Farber leads us through a collaborative process exploring the changing roles of school librarians, creating opportunities to leverage the expertise of school library workers, and forming new partnerships to solve challenges faced by schools and society at large.

Curiosity, creativity, and critical thinking: Why school libraries matter more than ever

Saturday Opening Keynote

Convention Center
Meeting Room C

Libraries have long been a home to wonder. In an age of unprecedented access to content consumption and production, the ability to wonder and the capacity to do something about it can lead students to fantastic creations...but only when they know how to find, assess, and use the information they need. It is our responsibility, and our opportunity, to provide students with the resourcefulness to discover, explore, and analyze in a time when we never know what the next change to their information landscape will be.

Tasha Bergson-Michelson has been a Google Search Educator since 2010. Her work at Google includes collaborating with educators who teach other people to search, including librarians, technology integration specialists, classroom teachers, professors, and more. Her main focus is K-20 and public libraries. She also supports educational efforts via Google's Massive Open Online Courses like "Power Searching with Google," the Search Education hub (<http://www.google.com/insidesearch/searcheducation/>), and Google+. Tasha is a librarian with almost 20 years' experience, having earned an MLIS degree from San José State University, following a B.A. from Mt. Holyoke College and M.A. in Chinese Studies from Harvard.

Conference attendees will have the opportunity to hear her thoughts on why and how school libraries matter more than ever as we, our students, and our teachers use tools like Google Search to access and evaluate information.

Steve Farber

Leadership Expert,
Bestselling Author,
Executive Coach

Monday Keynote

Marriott Ballroom

In this chaotic and extreme age, leaders of all kinds must demonstrate an unprecedented level of passion, determination, foresight, dedication, and fearlessness. In his wildly popular book and presentations, Steve Farber shows you how to use the LEAP framework – Love, Energy, Audacity and Proof to radically TRANSFORM EDUCATION and your life.

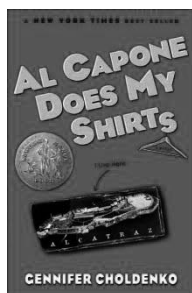

In this energetic and insightful program, you will discover how to...

- Use the power of the heart to achieve the extraordinary at work
- Inspire yourself and others to change the world you live in
- Earn your community's love and loyalty
- Keep yourself and others passionately engaged in the work at hand—even in troubled or difficult times

Zaner-Bloser - Using Engaging Multicultural Literature to Promote Social Emotional Development

Blossom Hill I/II

This session will explore engaging multicultural literature anchored by universal social emotional themes. Because classroom climate impacts a teacher's ability to successfully close the achievement gap in literacy, it is important that students receive intentional, systematic social development. Through the use of the best children's literature and thematically presenting relevant social content deserving of reading, writing, and discussing, teachers can build student's self-esteem and literacy skills concurrently. The literacy consultant will engage participants in discussions and hands on activities to experience: building positive relationships, implementing classroom preventive practices, and using social and emotion teaching strategies (NAEYC, 2003 and CSEFEL Pyramid Model).

2:45 – 3:10 PM

ProQuest - ebrary www.ebrary.com

Willow Glen I/II

ebrary helps customers acquire e-books strategically through a three step approach: Transition, Diversify and Streamline™. The company believes that by challenging the e-book status quo, organizations can effectively serve the diverse and growing needs of researchers and maximize their budgets. Founded in 1999, long before e-books were popular, ebrary is a ProQuest business located in Palo Alto, CA, USA. Moreover, ebrary's Schools & Educators Complete™ subscription collection contains almost 4,500 titles with relevance to state, national or provincial curriculum standards – with coverage of all common core subjects – including English Language Arts, Science, Math ematics, Social Studies, Health and Physical Education, and Information Literacy/Technology. With ebrary, students can annotate the book, which is a Common Core directive, and we promote Close Reading of Text because of the reference nature of our content.

Library of Congress Institute + Small Learning Community Collaboration = Linked Learning + Advocacy² 6 – 12

Willow Glen II

Two Teacher Librarians attended the Library of Congress Summer Institute and will share the learning experience to enhance your collaboration with high school small learning communities and emphasize linked-learning. Learn also how they have developed project-based events, using the LOC primary source materials, to emphasize relevance and rigor in learning focused on higher, vocational, and certificated pathways and careers. The learning community project embeds the Model School Library Standards into the WASC-reviewed Linked Learning process. They will share their learning, their groundwork and the process. This session can be adapted to upper elementary and middle school. This is advocacy from the ground-up.

- Pamela Oehlman, Polytechnic High School
- Dr. Barbara Duffy, Jordan High School

What RDA Does for Your Catalog K – 12

Salon I

RDA is the new AACR2 – the guidelines for cataloging materials into libraries. There are substantial changes that intend to bring cataloging into the 21st century by incorporating e-format books and other items better into our catalogs. This presentation introduces the changes. The presenter will discuss with the audience the ways RDA will affect their services to schoolchildren.

Live e-Learning and Online-Conferencing that Augments Instruction

K – 12

Salons III/IV

Today's online culture and post-secondary education is at a point where most students will experience, and instructors will utilize, the real-time Internet interactions that virtually mimic school environments. Live e-Learning, online-conferencing, and collaboration software are becoming prevalent in education. This session will show how to utilize one form of synchronous information delivery to support classroom content for the K-12 environment.

This presentation will illustrate the collaboration and preparation between the librarian and teachers to develop exciting e-presentations. It will also demonstrate the software and tools for a productive experience.

- David Joyner, Marysville High School

Legacy of Rescue – Inspiring Young Adults to Make a Difference

6 – 12

Willow Glen III

“Legacy of Rescue: A Daughter's Tribute” tells the story of Marta's father, who was one of 100 Hungarian Jewish men saved by Zoltán Kubinyi, posthumously honored as a Righteous Among the Nations due to Marta's father's testimony. The story of rescue came full circle in June 2011 when Marta and her brother took their children back to Hungary to meet Zoltán Kubinyi's family. With the rescuer's son, his wife, and granddaughters – the great grandchildren of Zoltán Kubinyi – Marta's family discussed how this courageous man none of them knew has made an indelible impact on all their lives. This intergenerational memoir inspires teens and adults alike, and serves as a catalyst for engaging discussions about historical events, ethical dilemmas, and finding one's own courage in everyday life to do the right thing.

- Marta Fuchs, Director of Library Services, Drew School, SF

Using Social Media Responsibly

K – 12

Salon V

This presentation will explore the social media environment, address information literacy, teach how to distinguish among trusted environments and will explore the adoption of safe and responsible social media technologies that can be used in an academic network so that students can creatively express themselves in ways that foster innovative solutions to assignments. This integration will result in a better understanding of cyber safety, digital citizenry and incorporate 21st-century best practices with social media while adhering to the new CIPA (child privacy) requirements. (Repeat of session at 12:30).

Finding Your Roots: Following the Paper Trail

9 - 12

Willow Glen II

Following your ancestors' paper trail helps create an interest in research and can lead to a narrative of your ancestors' lives. Using the book "The Cactus on My Forehead" as a model, the author will demonstrate a process that will boost interest in researching original documents. Consequently, this will draw interest to history and creative writing. The model is that of a long and important presence of a Mexican American family in North America.

- Alicia De Laurie Retired Library Media Teacher

Collaboration Success! A Research Model

6 - 12

Salons III/IV

Learn how two classroom teachers and the school Teacher Librarian collaborated to teach the research process to the entire 7th grade and in the process changed the culture of research at the school. The model can be replicated in parts or as a whole and will work with any subject.

Powerful Programming, Fresh Ideas, and Intriguing Activities Develop Lifelong Learners

K - 8

Salon II

Lifelong learners may very well start with loving their school library. Do you need fresh ideas for drawing students to the library, program promotion, teacher collaboration? This session will also present strategies to spark research questions, bring families together through a reading celebration, and excite students about both fiction and non-fiction through book talks and an intriguing "Did You Know?" Using best practices, as well as new ideas, you can, even with a limited budget, excite students, parents, and staff while making your library the heart of your school—where learning takes place and the school community loves to come.

Immedium Highlights Asian America for Kids 4 – 8

Willow Glen III

Author Oliver Chin shares how his contemporary Asian American children's books enrich students, teachers, and parents. His popular series Tales from the Chinese Zodiac (The Year of the Dragon) dovetail perfectly with annual New Year celebrations. Other stories address key classroom themes such as the value of ethnic-identity (Sora & the Cloud), character building (Julie Black Belt), and team work (The Treehouse Heroes, The Octonauts). Plus the topics of sports (The Tao of Yao: Insights from Basketball's Brightest Big Man), and graphic novels (9 of 1: A Window to the World) can engage middle and high schoolers, and provide rich opportunities for class discussion, group activities, and self-exploration.

Learn how Immedium's children's books invigorate traditional subject matter, and inspire students to learn and create.

The Street Lit Book Club – Reaching the Reluctant Reader

6 – 12

San Carlos

Requiring the lowest level readers at a middle school to join a book club was NOT a disaster! Instead, it became a tight group where students were motivated to read and discuss street lit books. Learn how to build excitement among struggling middle school readers with this edgy genre. An annotated booklist will be available. Many ARCs will be available free.

Noah Webster Brought America Together. How? Why? When? A New Picture Book Biography Reveals All

K – 12

Willow Glen III

Noah Webster wrote the second most popular book ever printed in English. It's in your library, in homes, on computers, and e-readers. Here, Jeri Chase Ferris will demonstrate her research, writing, and editing process for Noah Webster and His Words, a 2012 picture book biography. You'll delve into early American history and see how the first American dictionary was created. You will collect lesson plans and ideas for using the book in your library and see how, with the author's note and an illustrated chronology of Webster's life and times, it supports social studies, language arts, creative writing, grammar, and more.

When the Library Meets the Farmstand and Other Stories from the University of San Francisco

K – 12

Willow Glen I

Interested in connecting your library to real world projects? David Silver will introduce you to a relatively new course at the University of San Francisco in which students learn how to harvest seasonal produce from their campus garden, how to cook various dishes, and how to offer their meals to the larger community via a campus farmstand. The talk then discusses the unique role Gleeson Library plays in the farmstand.

Learning through Literature

K – 6

Salon V

We will explore learning and lessons in the library using great books. Learn how to use over 50 picture books to create learning in your library for students in grades K-6. Titles and lessons will cover many different subjects and genres. You will leave with lessons you can use the next day with books that you already have sitting on your library shelves. Standards will be included. We will share excellent ideas for teacher librarians and paraprofessionals.

- Patricia Ohanian, Addison Elementary School, Palo Alto Unified School District

LibGuides- Your Answer to Online Resources That Make You the “Resource Queen/King” at Your School!

K – 5

Salons III/IV

The library needs to be the place where students can find relevant, appropriate, and compelling resources that are tied in with their classroom curriculum. Come to this presentation to see how one district has created online “LibGuides” (library guides) which put great resources in one handy spot and make its Teacher Librarians the people that classroom teachers will turn to for help with curricular links. We will discuss Elementary School Resources, 4th Grade Social Studies Resources, 5th Grade Social Studies Resources, Science Resources, Math Resources, And... Digital Safety Resources (linked to the Broadband Improvement Act). Best of all, the LibGuides are linked to the Model School Library Standards!

- Kristen Lee, Teacher Librarian, Palo Alto

What Comes Next? How Sequels Can Inspire Writing

K – 8

Willow Glen III

Sometimes the hardest part of writing is getting started, but when we are teaching children to write we can remove this initial obstacle by letting them take inspiration from existing books. By forging forward with a character that the child already feels connected to, we heighten interest and remove writer's block, making the sequel an ideal tool for teaching narrative writing.

Virtual Learning Commons: 24/7 Student Learning Environment. What Does it Look Like? K – 5

Salon I

With the exponential expansion of information, ever-changing technology, and heightened demands for critical, creative, and collaborative thinking, how do we teach our digital learners to access and utilize information no longer confined to books? How do we keep students involved, engaged, and excited about learning?

This presentation will share how Virtual Learning Commons provide access to 24/7 interactive learning environments available anytime, anywhere. Tour an elementary VLC in real time, explore webtools, and see how collaborating with classroom teachers and hosting activities and school-wide events create an interactive and dynamic learning environment for 21st century learning.

Dewey Defeats Boredom: How to Turn Library Skills-Building into an Adventure! K – 12

Salon V

This workshop will help you make learning library skills fun for kids! Mom's Choice Award Winning Author Jason Edwards, a licensed and certified educator with over 20 years of experience creating innovative ways to inspire and instruct children, guides participants through the process of producing inventive, hands-on learning exercises that teach and develop the skills children need in order to find books and information in the library. Edwards will demonstrate how to identify appropriate goals, select methods, produce materials, and carry out exciting activities that teach kids vital research skills including identifying and distinguishing the content of different sections of the library, how to use the Library Catalog, finding books of different subjects using the Dewey Decimal System, and how to perform Internet searches. The model used to exemplify activity construction will be Jason's signature Monster Hunt program, in which teams of adventurers learn library skills as they track down and capture a lurking monster! Edwards will show how to tailor programs to groups of differing ages and levels of ability, and how to integrate many AASL educational goals into the programs generated including the building of reasoning, organization, and team-building skills. He will also review how to work together with other departments to incorporate broader learning goals into your program.

Conference Evaluation

The CSLA Conference Committee would appreciate your comments and suggestions about our 2012 Conference. Please complete an evaluation for the conference as a whole and for each of the workshops and concurrent sessions you attend. Your evaluation will provide us feedback we will use to plan for future conferences. Thank you for taking the evaluations.

Parking

The Marriott is offering conference attendees a reduced $10 per day rate for the hotel's valet parking. Please be sure to park at the Marriott and not at the Convention Center to receive this rate. Attendees staying at the hotel will have the $10 per day parking posted to your hotel bills. If you are not staying at the hotel, please tell the valet that you are with the conference when you pick up your car. There is also free street parking in Downtown San José on Sundays.
